

Long time ago in a little place name Earth existed two bright lights, the Moon and the Sun. They were considered the most important things on earth, but then they did well to the earth and plants and flowers started to appear too, and animals were found later as well.

The Sun felt good because he knew that everything that was there on earth grew because of him, then the Moon felt unhappy because she did not know what to do, she thought she was not important to be on earth.

All the animals and plants were very happy and appreciate to the Sun for the light while the moon felt useless. She went away for two days and found a group of humans who were really happy to see her. She felt happy again and became brighter than before. She knew she was very important like the Sun.

How many bright lights existed on Earth?

Did the bright lights damage the Earth?

What appeared?

Why did the Sun feel good?

Was the Moon unhappy?

At the end of the story, what did the Moon feel?