

How much / How many / How often

We use "how much / how many" to ask for quantity for uncountable / countable nouns. And we can answer with "any, some, a lot of, a few, a little".

We use "how often" to ask how frequently something happens. And we can answer with an adverb of frequency (always, often, sometimes, hardly ever, never...)

1. A: for those trainers?
B: They're £15
2. A: red cars!
B: Yeah, they're a lot!
3. A: do you go to dance?
B: I usually go on weekends.
4. A: do you take the bus?
B: Everyday in the morning to go to work.
5. A: honey is there in the cupboard?
B: Just a little, we should buy more.
6. A: do you send emails?
B: Hardly ever. I usually send text messages by mobile phone, not emails.
7. A: sandwiches have we made?
B: Only five, we need to make some more.

8. A: guests did you invite to the party?
B: Not many, don't worry!
9. A: do you eat fish?
B: I usually eat fish on Wednesdays.
10. A: fruit is there in the basket?
B: A lot! We have some bananas, apples, pears...
11. A: do you visit your grandparents?
B: Every summer!
12. A: sugar do you want with your coffee?
B: Two teaspoons, please.
13. A: brothers and sisters do you have?
B: I have only one brother.
14. A: chairs do you have in your living room?
B: I have four.
15. A: beef do we need for the BBQ?
B: We need some more.
16. A: players are in your team?
B: We're five.
17. A: orange juice is needed for the cake?
B: A cup of orange juice.