During holidays, I would spend my time with Uncle Pete. We would usually go camping while Hope, my sister, would stay at home. However, this time, Hope wanted to follow.

I said, "Camping is hard. Can you do everything on your own?"

"I can. Please let me go with you, Sophia," Hope pleaded.

I frowned but Uncle Pete agreed.

Uncle Pete drove us to the forest. We took our backpacks and hiked towards a lake. Five minutes later, Hope was so tired that we had to stop. Uncle Pete and I pitched our tent while she watched us.

Then, Uncle Pete said, "Let's go fishing. Put some worms on the hook."

"That's gross. I will not do it," said Hope.

Uncle Pete helped Hope put the worm on the hook. While fishing, she felt a tug. I helped her pull the fish out of the water.

That night, Uncle Pete cooked the fish and it tasted great.

I smiled and said to Hope, "I am glad you came. You caught our dinner."
