Do you ever feel that your parents don't understand you? Does it sometimes seem like they only want you to listen and never want to give you any freedom? 6.1. __ When you were born, you were a helpless little baby. They cared for you night and day. They realised that when they failed to do something properly, you were either ill or simply uncomfortable and unhappy. 6.2. __ Besides, do you remember how you used to ask them lots of questions and how they used to answer them all? They told you about the world, taught you to count, name colours or maybe even how to read and write. And you know what? They loved it. 6.3. __ Now that you are a teenager, there are fewer opportunities for them to do this. It is very difficult for your parents to change in just one day. They need time to understand that their little boy or girl is not so little anymore. Now they have to learn that they are not your teachers anymore. They can still be great advisors and people who give you comfort when you are sad, though. Will you let them be?

- A. It is a wonderful feeling to teach a young person about the world.
- B. On the contrary, they wished the time would go by faster.
- C. Well, read this text and you may understand them a little more.
- D. This way they learnt that they have to be responsible for you.
