

Hiawatha was a young Red Indian boy. He lived with his old grandmother Nokomis, in a wigwam. Nokomis taught Hiawatha about the wonders around them.

She told him about the stars. The trees, the insects, the birds, the animals, and many other things. Hiawatha grew up to love them all. He could talk to the birds and the animals, and they to him.