Teachers teach children to read, write, do math, and much more. They show students skills.

Teachers try to make their lessons easy to understand. They also explain information. That´s why they teach things in different ways so that different students can learn in the way that is easier for them. They make posters or worksheets, they also use games, videos, computers, chalkboards, projectors and other tools to teach children different subjects.

Teachers give homework, correct it, and make class projects, too. They often have students work together to do projects. When students cannot do well, teachers help them.

Teachers want to see children learn, but sometimes teaching lots of students can be stressful. Teachers also have to deal with children who misbehave. Teachers work with students of many different cultures. Teachers learn about different cultures so that they can be more helpful to students.
