

Jenny and Rob meet again, in New York.

1. Answer the questions below about EPISODE 19:

a. How long has Rob been in New York so far?

b. How long is he going to stay there?

c. What is Rob doing in New York?

d. Is Rob enjoying the Hotel?

e. What can you say about the view from his room?

f. What is Jenny planning to do the day after?

g. Who is looking forward to meeting Rob?

2. Rewrite the sentences below using the expression "BE LOOKING FORWARD DOING". Follow the model:

Model: Barbara really wants to meet you.

Barbara is looking forward to meeting you.

a. I really need to find a job.

b. We want to buy a new car.

c. Neil is eager to start College.

d. Sandy needs to talk to Professor Craig urgently.

e. They want to rent a house on the beach to spend their vacation.

3. Rewrite the sentences below using HAVE GOT / HAVEN'T GOT / HAS GOT / HASN'T GOT

a. Do you have a reservation at that Hotel?

b. Does Ronald have any ideas to present at the meeting?

c. They don't have any idea what they are doing here.

d. She wants to go to the UK, but she doesn't have a passport.

e. What does Jenny have to do in the office?

4. Make up sentences using MUST BE. Remember, MUST BE is used to express strong PROBABILITY.

MODEL: Suzy is certainly angry with you.

Suzy must be angry with you.

a. They haven't arrived so far. I'm sure there is something wrong.

b. Sara seems to be so tense on the plane, it is probably the first time she flies.

c. I cannot believe that! I do not want to sell our house. I am sure we can find another solution.

d. What! You haven't eaten anything since you woke up. I bet you are starving.

e. Come on, Roy. Hurry up! We are late. I bet everybody is angry with us.

5. Rewrite the sentences using the words in brackets.

a. Let's finish our drinks. You need to go to bed.

(snacks / go back to work)

b.

(lunch / go to school)

c.

(hot dogs / go to your meeting)

d.

(Desserts / call your boss)

e.

(Pasta / take your flight)

6. Make up sentences following the instructions below:

a. Ask Meg if she enjoyed her time in The UK.

b. Tell your friend Anna that you have never been to New York.

c. Ask Ron what time he can meet you tomorrow at the hotel.

d. Tell Patricia your friend Arthur would like to see her at his party next Saturday.

e. Ask a female passerby if she could tell you the way to Central Park.

7. Rewrite the sentences below in the Indirect speech form:

- a. Jennifer: There is just one thing, Rob. Don't be late!

- b. Lisa: Ramon, please don't tell anybody about this!

- c. Greg: Judith, don't forget to call Richard. He needs to talk to you.

- d. Julio: Chelsea, don't leave before I get home. I would like to see you.

- e. Doctor Spencer: Betty, don't drink when you take your medicines.

8. Ask questions for the answers below:

- a. Q: _____
A: Actually, I expected more of it. There is not air conditioner, the hot shower is not working and breakfast isn't good.
- b. Q: _____
A: In fact, I have some good ideas that will make the readers of the Magazine enjoy much more our daily blog.
- c. Q: _____
A: Yes, she loved your article about your first impressions of New York.
- d. Q: _____
A: I am going to stay here in Los Angeles for two months.
- e. Q: _____
A: I have been here for one day only, I arrived here in New York last night.

TEXT

After a few days after having said goodbye to Jenny in London, Rob is in New York, at last. Jenny was looking forward to seeing him so bad that she forgot he has just arrived from a long flight and took him straight to a Cafe to talk and have some drinks. She was all excited and full of plans for the next day, she wanted to show him around the office and introduce him to the team, principally Barbara, her boss, and by the way, Rob was so tired that for a moment he didn't even remember who Barbara was. That was when Jenny realized he needed to go to bed and have some rest. Rob was relieved to hear that they would meet at 11 in the morning the next day, he would have enough time to catch up on some sleep.

Anyway, they were both really happy to meet again, this time in New York, and Jenny just took the chance to make it clear from the start: Rob should be on time.