

READ

A. Look at the title and the picture. Do you think the young man helps with the housework? Read the text to find out.

Housework? No, Thanks!

Danny Carlton, 18, is a university student and he lives with his parents in a flat in Manchester. He's very happy about his life at home. He gets everything and he doesn't really do much!

'I don't think housework is difficult or tiring, I just haven't got time. I wake up early in the morning and I get back home late in the evening,' he says. 'My mum makes my breakfast and my evening meals. She also does the washing and irons my clothes. I only make my bed and tidy my room on Saturdays.'

'I'm happy Danny lives at home,' Danny's mother says. 'He's lazy and he doesn't help with the housework, but that's OK. We have a good relationship and we talk just like friends.' Danny's father doesn't agree. 'Danny's spoiled, but it isn't his fault. His mum does everything. This isn't a hotel, you know.'

B. Read again and correct the sentences.

1. Danny does everything at home.
2. Danny makes his breakfast.
3. Danny's mother tidies his room.
4. Danny is lazy, but he helps with the housework.
5. Danny and his father talk like friends.