RIDE A BIKE IN HELSINKI

You are late for work, and you don't have a car. The bus is too slow. What do you do? If you live in Helsinki, Finland, you can take a green bicycle from the street and ride it to work.

Helsinki's City Bike program operates 26 bike stands in the center of Helsinki. Anyone can use them. You can take a city bike from a stand and leave a sum of money there. After you finish with the bicycle, you return it to a stand and get your money back.

The bicycles are simple but comfortable. They have a special design, and they are painted bright green, so it's easy to see them.

The program is very popular. For many people, a City Bike is a practical way to get around. All kinds of people use the bicycles: shoppers, old people, and students going to class. There are free bike programs in several other cities also, including Copenhagen, Toronto, and Orlando.
