

Combine the following sentences so that the second sentence becomes a clause modifying the italicized noun in the first sentence.

Example: That's an interesting book. You're reading the book.
That's an interesting book that you're reading.

1. I see a ship. It has just crossed the ocean.
2. I know a boy. He dreams a lot.
3. He was hunting a polar bear. It was difficult to see in the snow.
4. That boy is my friend. He is standing in the corner.
5. That's the dress. My mother just finished making it.
6. That's the hat. I just bought it.
7. That's the same movie. We saw it last year.
8. That's the whale. It just washed up on shore.
9. That's an igloo. Some Eskimos live in it.
10. That's the harpoon. The Eskimo uses it for hunting.
11. That's Antarctica. Nobody lives there.
12. That's the plane. It just landed.
13. The girl is Paula. She's talking to Helen.
14. The ships were very small. They crossed the ocean in them.
15. The plants can be eaten by man. They grow in the oceans.
16. Wheat is a plant. It grows in many parts of the world.

17. It was a sunny day. They went on a picnic that day.

18. The boy got hurt. He was skiing.
19. The boys didn't pass the examination. They didn't study.
20. This is the chair. The old man made it.