Hi I'm Patrick, and I'm from Dublin, Ireland. My family aren't religious, so we don't go to church on Easter Sunday, but we still celebrate the holiday. Every year on the Saturday night, the Easter bunny comes and hides small chocolate eggs in the garden. My sister and I look for them on the Sunday morning and collect them in our baskets. This is called an Easter egg hunt. My relatives also give us large chocolate eggs as gifts.

Hi I'm Natalie, and I'm from London. Easter is a very important festival for our family. In school we learn about the crucifixion and the ascension, and we go to church every Easter Sunday. We decorate our house with spring flowers, especially tulips and daffodils. We also paint hard-boiled eggs with different colours and designs; I love doing this with my mum. My grandmother always bakes hot cross buns too. That's my favourite part of Easter.
