

EXPRESSING REASON AND PURPOSE

I. Look at the sentences. What are the differences in grammar? Match.

Domestic abusers tried to isolate their victims so as to exert power over them.
Victims may stay in their homes for fear of infection.
Children are using an online chat to talk to experts.
Social workers must innovate so that victims can get help.
Some abusers are lying in order to make the victims stay at home permanently.

Followed by a noun
Followed by a full sentence with a different subject than the first clause.
Followed by a to-infinitive, neutral
Followed by a to-infinitive, formal. Often begins a sentence
Followed by a to-infinitive, very formal

II. Put one of the above expressions into the sentences (you may need negations).

- The state must implement new regulations _____ protection of abuse victims.
- One of them is the immediate eviction of the perpetrator _____ the victim still has a safe place of residence.
- The drop in police statistics are falsified by victims not reporting crimes _____ poke the sleeping bear.
- As a result, countries with a low number of cases may actually have the opposite situation. _____ combat this problem, women must feel that the police are on their side.
- The police often underreport _____ gain better results in fighting crime. This also applies to hate crimes, such as racist, homophobic or ethnic incidents.

Discuss the statements. Do you generally agree with them?

III. Find collocations.

domestic

exert

impose

issue

remove

safe

steep

poke

an obstacle

decline

power

an order

haven

violence

control

increase

the bear