Junior: Hello Mike! How's everything?

Mike: Hmm, not good at all.

Junior: Really? Why?

Mike: It's my son. I'm worried_____him.

Junior: Why are you worried?

Mike: Because he never listens_____me. Also, he argues a lot_____his younger brother.

Junior: Did you already talk with him?

Mike: Yes, I did, but when I start talking he just escapes_____me.

Junior: And what does your wife, Ana, think about this?

Mike: She is afraid_____the situation. She thinks that he is trying drugs or meeting with bad people.

Junior: I don't believe_____that. I mean, I know that there are too many adolescents on that stuff, but your son is not one of those boys.

Mike: Do you think that he is suffering_____depression? He doesn't get out of his room and he listens_____sad music all day long.

Junior: Hmm, I agree_____you. I think that probably that's the problem. But it's better if you take him to a psychologist.

Mike: Yes, you're right. A psychologist may help him_____his problem.

Junior: Of course! You are doing a great job though, I admire you_____your resilience!
