

Story

It's true that life isn't all rainbows and unicorns. As we experience pleasant moments, we can go through tough times. What matters is that we learn a lesson. Last year, I decided to go camping with my family. The weather was formidable and it appeared to be a good day. We prepared all what we need and we hit the road at dawn.

My dad was driving the car. It was windless and cloudless. We reached our destination after 3 hours. My brothers quickly pitched the tent and my dad lit a fire. I was looking after my little brother. My brothers went fishing in a near river. Out of the blue, the weather became murky and gusty. It started raining cats and dogs. My father started shouting, "Hurry up! It's a thunderstorm!" We went inside the tent, but my brothers didn't appear. The wind was blowing a gale and it was about to tear off the tent. At that time, I was thinking of my two brothers. Without thinking, I went to the river searching for them, but there was no trace. I felt anxious. I saw muddy footprints on the edge of the river. I followed them until I noticed that my brothers were at the heart of the river. They were catching a tree trunk. I saw a long rope near a huge tree. I threw it to them and pulled them one after the other.

I ran like the wind towards them. I felt I was over the moon because I rescued people from my blood and flesh from a risky situation. I learnt that it is nice to help others and draw smiles on their cheeks.
