Plastic is cheap and doesn't break easily like glass. That's why people like to use it. However, plastic is bad for our environment because it can take hundreds of years for it to break down.

It's no surprise that plastic pollution is now in the fossil record. People found small pieces of plastic in the layers of soft sand and rock in California. They also found that the amount of plastic pieces increased with the growing production of plastic over the years.

Plastic pollution is a serious problem. Let's work together to fix the problem. Recycling helps, but reducing the use is the best way.
