If you encounter vectors, or surfaces that have come into contact with vectors you can become extremely sick.

Some examples of vectors are rats, roaches, mosquitoes and flies.

You can spend thousands of dollars if you have to go to the hospital or see a doctor.

You should keep your environment clean to make sure that these vectors stay away.

We all know that medical care can be expensive.

Vectors are animals that carry diseases.

One reason why we should keep our surroundings clean is because a filthy environment can attract vectors.

Additionally, some people have even died because of their experiences with vectors.
