My friend Ben writes an internet blog. I first read his blog two years ago. I sometimes write on his blog and now we are friends. He lives in Manchester, in the north of England. He is really interested in sport. He plays basketball and tennis and he also likes swimming. He isn't very good at football but he loves watching his favourite football team – Manchester City. He usually watches football on television but he sometimes goes to the stadium to watch matches. At school, Ben enjoys maths and science but he doesn't like art or music because he isn't good at drawing and he hates singing! After school Ben usually plays computer games, chats online with his friends or goes to the park to play basketball. Last year he went on holiday to the USA with his parents. They went by plane, of course. The journey was long and tiring because they flew to California. It took eleven hours! They were really tired when they arrived. They visited San Francisco and then they went to Los Angeles. Ben was very excited to see Hollywood and the houses of some famous film actors and musicians. While they were walking around Hollywood, they saw Leonardo di Caprio! He was drinking coffee ina café. Ben took a photo and uploaded it onto his blog. It's a really cool photo. Next summer Ben is coming here to visit. I'm going to show him our beautiful city.
