THE DAY THE LIGHTS WENT OUT

POWER CUT HITS MILLIONS, NO LIGHT, NO HEAT, NO TRAIN
By Tony De Marchi

New York City in darkness

"The train went dark, a woman screamed..."

A POWER CUT HIT NEW YORK STATE YESTERDAY. Millions of people—from New York to Canada—had no light, no heating and no food. Thirty million people had no electricity for 13 hours.

The power cut hit at 7 pm while pupils at Thomas Jefferson School were rehearsing for school concert. 'I was singing when suddenly all the lights went out,' said 11-year-old Loretta Green.

Across New York City, people were making dinner. 'I was cooking soup when the power went off,' said Martha Miller, in Manhattan. 'It was really dark in Times Square,' said Mario Bolatelli, a police officer. 'A lot of people left their cars in the streets and walk home.'

At New York Zoo, an elephant escaped. 'The lights went out while we were feeding the animals and I was checking for them.'
