

1. Glancing at the clock on her nightstand, she waited until her father had left, then rose.
2. She said you are a, sensitive, strong boy with a unique gift.
3. He stands out, not merely as the greatest ruler, warrior and statesman, but also as the most and most original poet.
4. He led her to the uppermost floor of the castle, to a hallway with magnificent views of a green valley with trees.
5. A gust of wind delivered the smell of raindrops on soil.
6. Your child's pajamas shouldn't be, but they also don't need to be too large.
7. One of the most compelling justifications for the shift from bulky clock radios to high-tech devices centers on the superior technology that's responsible for these drastic changes in size.
8. Her first instinct was to run back to the shadow world, but she had a hard time looking away from the two creatures battling it out in Hannah's home.
9. Given her first chance to rest in over two days, she sighed, and irritated at having to dig her own clothing out of a box.