Language

When writing a review of a TV programme, we use a variety of adjectives and adverbs to improve the quality of our writing. It's important to use the correct word order. Adjectives usually come before a noun or after the verb to be. Adverbs of manner come after the verb. Adverbs of degree come before an adverb of manner or an adjective.

It's a silly programme.
The participants are really ridiculous.
The TV host dances very strangely and sings loudly.

2 Which adjectives and adverbs did the writer include in the model? Which words do they refer to? Do they come before or after these words? Type the answers.

Adjectives / Adverbs	Refer to	Before / after

Model

THE AMAZING RACE

The Amazing Race is a reality TV game show. It's been very popular since it started in 2001.

Participants go on an exciting race around the world. There are 11 pairs competing to win the race. The Amazing Race has taken place in many different countries with the pairs of participants working extremely hard to get to their destinations quickly. The pairs don't get information about their next destination until they've completed a task. Sometimes the tasks are risky or unpleasant.

In my opinion, The Amazing Race is the best reality show on TV. The race is very exciting and there are always interesting people to follow. Check out The Amazing Race. It's a unique and fun programme to watch.