MÉTODO ISO - JMB

0. When

This happened a few years ago.

1. Where

I live in Granada,

2. Who

and my wife and I had rented a house in Granada for the summer holiday. We were going to drive first to Malaga to stay for a few days with some friends and then drive from Malaga to Granada.

3. Why

0. Cuando

Esto ocurrió hace unos años.

1. Dónde

Vivo en Granada,

2. Que

mi mujer y yo habíamos alquilado una casa en Granada para las vacaciones de verano. Íbamos a ir primero en coche a Málaga

3. Por qué

para quedarnos unos días con unos amigos y luego conducir de Málaga a Granada

4. Satnav

The first part of the journey was fine. We were using our new satnav for the first time and it took us right to the door of our friends' house. Two days later, when we continued our journey, we put in the name of the small town in Granada, Santa Fe, which was our final destination. We started off, obediently following the instructions.

5. Wrong

However, after a while, we realized that instead of driving west towards Vega de Granada, we were going north. In fact, soon we were quite near Los montes, right on the border with Jaen.

I was sure we were going in the wrong direction, but my wife wanted to do what the satnav seeing mountains that even he admitted this couldn't be the right way. So we stopped, got out and old map, and then turned round. We had wasted nearly two hours going in the wrong directions!

6. Cat

It was an awful journey, because as well as getting lost, we had another problem. When we were nearly at our destination, we stopped for a tea at a little bar, but as soon as we got back onto the motorway we realized that we had left our cat under the table in the tea shop! For the second time that day, we had to turn round and go back.

7. Luckily

Luckily, the cat was still there! And luckily, although the beginning of our trip was a disaster, in the end we had a wonderful holiday!

4. Navegación por satélite

La primera parte del viaje estuvo bien. Usamos nuestro nuevo navegador por satélite por primera vez y nos llevó justo a la puerta de la casa de nuestros amigos. Dos días más tarde, al continuar nuestro viaje, pusimos el nombre del pequeño pueblo de Granada, Santa Fe, que era nuestro destino final. Nos pusimos en marcha, siguiendo obedientemente las instrucciones.

5. Equivocado

Sin embargo, al cabo de un rato, nos dimos cuenta de que en lugar de conducir hacia el oeste, hacia la Vega de Granada, íbamos hacia el norte. De hecho, pronto estábamos bastante cerca de Los montes, justo en la frontera con Jaén.

Yo estaba seguro de que íbamos en la dirección equivocada, pero mi mujer quería hacer lo que el navegador por satélite viendo las montañas que incluso admitió que este no podía ser el camino correcto. Así que nos detuvimos, sacamos un viejo mapa y nos dimos la vuelta. Habíamos perdido casi dos horas yendo en direcciones equivocadas.

6. Gato

Fue un viaje horrible, porque además de perdernos, tuvimos otro problema. Cuando ya estábamos casi en nuestro destino, nos detuvimos a tomar un té en un pequeño bar, pero en cuanto volvimos a la autopista nos dimos cuenta de que habíamos dejado a nuestro gato debajo de la mesa de la tetería. Por segunda vez ese día, tuvimos que dar la vuelta y regresar.

7. Por suerte

Por suerte, ¡el gato seguía allí! Y por suerte, aunque el comienzo de nuestro viaje fue un desastre, ¡al final tuvimos unas vacaciones maravillosas!

This happened a few years ago⁰. I live in Granada¹, and my wife and I had rented a house in Granada for the summer holiday. We were going to drive first to Malaga² to stay for a few days with some friends and then drive from Malaga to Granada³.

The first part of the journey was fine. We were using our new satnav for the first time and it took us right to the door of our friends' house. Two days later, when we continued our journey, we put in the name of the small town in Granada, Santa Fe, which was our final destination. We started off, obediently following the instructions⁴. However, after a while, we realized that instead of driving west towards Vega de Granada, we were going north. In fact, soon we were quite near Los Montes, right on the border with Jaen. I was sure we were going in the wrong direction, but my wife wanted to do what the satnav showed, seeing mountains that even it admitted this couldn't be the right way. So, we stopped, got out an old map, and then turned round. We had wasted nearly two hours going in the wrong directions!⁵

It was an awful journey, because as well as getting lost, we had another problem. When we were nearly at our destination, we stopped for a tea at a little bar, but as soon as we got back onto the motorway we realized that we had left our cat under the table in the tea shop! For the second time that day, we had to turn round and go back⁶. Luckily, the cat was still there! And luckily, although the beginning of our trip was a disaster, in the end we had a wonderful holiday!⁷

Two days later, when we continued our journey, we put in the name of the small town in Granada, Santa Fe, which was our final destination. We are supposed¹ everything would be fine and we started off obediently following the instructions⁴.

Yet², after a while, we cannot help but point out³, not all that glitters is gold⁴, because we realized that instead of driving west towards Vega de Granada, we were going north. In fact, soon we were quite near Los Montes, right on the border we come across⁵ with Jaen. At first glance⁶, I was sure we were going in the wrong direction, but it appears to be⁷ my wife wanted to do what the satnav showed. There was a fine line to make mistakes seeing mountains that even it admitted this couldn't be the right way, so where do we draw the line?⁹ We stopped, grab the bull by the horns²¹ and got out an old map, and then turned round. It is fair to say¹⁰ that we need to pin down¹¹ it had far-reaching effects¹³ because we had wasted nearly two hours going in the wrong directions!⁵

Let us dive deeper into it and pin down¹⁴ It was an awful journey, because as well as getting lost, we had another problem. Last but not least²², when we were nearly at our destination, we stopped for a tea at a little bar, but as soon as we got back onto the motorway we realized that we had left our cat under the table in the tea shop! We cannot overlook that fact²³ for the second time that day, we had to turn round and go back⁶. Luckily, the cat was still there! And luckily, although the beginning of our trip was a disaster, on the tip of the iceberg²⁵, it is worth highlighting²⁶ in the end we had a wonderful holiday!⁷ Broaden horizons!²⁸
