Intelligent? Sure, but very forgetful!

We all know somebody who is intelligent, but very forgetful or absent-minded. Clever people who always forget where their keys are and that kind of thing. Some famous geniuses were absent-minded. We know that Isaac Newton boiled his pocket watch instead of an egg. Once Albert Einstein was travelling on a train. When the inspector came along and asked to see his ticket, Einstein could not find it. He searched for it frantically, checking his pockets and his bag. Then the inspector recognized Einstein and he said it did not matter.

However, Einstein continued looking for his ticket. He explained he needed his ticket to find out where he was going! He totally forgot his destination. Here is an example from my family. My dad is a maths teacher - very clever - but he is very forgetful. Ten years ago, it was my sister's ninth birthday. The balloons were up and the party bags were ready. My sister and I had our best dresses on. The table was full of delicious party food, but there were no guests. Nobody arrived. Finally, my mother had an idea. She looked in the drawer of my father's desk and she found the party invitations. Every year, on my sister's birthday, we remind him about this and we all laugh about it. By Julia.

Say if the statements are true or false. Correct the false ones:

1. Nobody knows somebody who is intelligent and also forgetful.
2. Some geniuses forget simple things.
3. Isaac Newton boiled his keys instead of an egg.
4. Albert Einstein was on a bus.
5. A ticket inspector asked to see Einstein's train ticket.
6. Einstein knew where he was going.

7. Julia's dad is a maths teacher.
8. Ten years ago, it was her ninth birthday.
9. Julia and her sister were wearing their party clothes.
10. Everybody turned up on time.
11. Dad sent off the invitations.

Albert Einstein was a top physicist, and developed the theory of relativity, but he was very forgetful/absent-minded.

Sir Isaac Newton explained gravity, but he was absent-minded.
