The Sad Story of Percy, the TV Addict

Young Percy's parents could not get
Their son to leave the TV set.
In fact, it was a common sight,
From five o'clock till late at night,
To see young Percival McQueen
Before the television screen.

He watched the sports, the plays, the news,
The Westerns and the interviews.
The programmes might be good or bad,
They might be comical or sad;
He watched them all the evening through.
(They say he watched the test card, too.)

At half-past five the little chap
Would eat his supper on his lap;
But what he ate he did not know —
His eyes were on the children's show!
All table manners he forgot —
It didn't worry him a jot.

And then one night, I'm sad to tell,
Young Percival was heard to yell;
"I cannot watch it any more,
My eyes are feeling strange and sore!"
And when he got up from his chair,
His eyes were green and red ... and square!

Poor Percy had to pay the price
For disregarding good advice.
For fear that you might share his fate,
You must learn to discriminate.
Don't be like Percival McQueen —
An addict of the TV screen.
