1. When should you use in-text citation within your writing?
    A. At the end of your paragraph
    B. At the last sentence of your paper.
    C. When you want people to believe in your findings
    D. When you have taken information from other sources

2. What are the four techniques of in-text citations?
    A. summary, quotation, inferencing & parenthetical
    B. parenthetical, narrative, quotation & synthesizing
    C. summary, quotation, synthesize & paraphrase
    D. quotation, synthesize, paraphrase & block quote

3. Given is an example of _____ citation technique.

Although students correctly noted that research experience, letters of recommendation, personal statements, GPA, and program fit are important factors, they erroneously attached relatively low importance to conference presentations, publications, and the thoroughness of application materials (Sanders & Landrum, 2012). Appleby and Appleby (2006) found that the shortcomings of many psychology majors' applications to graduate programs resulted from > a lack of exposure to information that would otherwise enable [the applicants] to understand the graduate school culture, the requirements of the graduate school application process, and the exact nature of some of its components [as well as] a lack of appropriate advising and mentoring. (p. 22)

4. What should be included in your in-text citations?
    1.
    2.
    3.

5. Below is an example of _____ citation technique.

> Nowadays stress become a common issue which causes ill health to humans. Whatever they do, they will finally result by having stress. This is because of focusing on their affiliation needs while linking their busy life with jobs and studies. Stress is a real or perceived imbalance between environmental demands required for survival and an individual's capacity to adapt to these requirements (Lazarus and Folkman, 1984; Chrousos and Gold, 1992; Lovallo, 1997; Pearlin, Lieberman, Menaghan, and Mullen, 1981; Weiner, 1992).

LIVEWORKSHEETS