Sugar, sugar

Did you see that documentary about healthy eating last night? It was about how much sugar we eat without knowing. Did you know that there's sugar in bread and soup?! Even 'healthy' snacks have much more sugar than we think! 😱

I saw it, too! I think the problem is that food producers add sugar to products because we like things that taste sweet. They also add sugar so that food can stay on the supermarket shelves longer without going bad. It's terrible! 😞

 I agree! This means we eat much more sugar than we should! You shouldn't have more than six teaspoons of sugar a day, but there are seven teaspoons in just one fizzy drink! And I drink a can of cola every day! 🗨️

 I disagree. The media always try to scare us about food! It's always in the news! First they told us we were eating too much salt, then it was too much red meat. This week it's sugar. Next week it'll be milk products! Is everything bad for our health?! I think people are clever enough to make their own food choices. 🗨️

 I'm sorry, but I don't agree. I don't think everyone can make the right choices. I blame the advertisers. We see so many pictures of delicious looking food everywhere, which makes us want to eat more. But a lot of that food is unhealthy – sugar is really bad for your teeth and for your health. 🍷

 Hi! Can I just say that there's more to a healthy diet than eating less sugar? It isn't just sugar we need to worry about – a diet of burgers and chips isn't good for us either! 🗨️

 That's true – but that isn't what we're talking about! The point is that we're eating extra sugar because it's difficult to know how much sugar is added to food. There's so much information on every product that it's very hard to understand. 🗨️

 You're so right! A friend told me yesterday that she had an app called 'Sugar smart'. You use your phone on the barcode of food and drinks and the app shows you how much sugar is in the product! It's really easy to use! 🗨️

 What a good idea! I'm going to download it right now! I'm going to tell my mum about it, too. Yesterday she said that we were eating too much sugar. She's really worried about it. 🗨️

 Yeah, this app sounds great. It can help us make the right choices. We can decide not to buy products that have too much sugar. Maybe then the producers will make food healthier! 🗨️
