

Illustrate the caption

When authors prepare non-fiction texts, they often include photographs or illustrations to help the reader better understand what they are reading. A caption is included near the photograph or illustration to describe what the reader is seeing. Captions are often short phrases or a single sentence.

Directions: Create and write a caption under each picture of the story "The bad seed", that you read yesterday.

