

THE PLOT

The story begins in Greece, on the Island of Ithaca. Penelope and Ulysses live in the Palace. They are in love.

Ulysses goes to war and leaves Penelope with his friend Antinous and Cleia, the servant.

Ulysses gives Penelope a bow.

While Ulysses is at war, he sends letters to Penelope telling her he will be back home soon.

At the Palace, Antinous receives the letters and tears them.

Antinous invents that Ulysses is dead and forces Penelope to marry him. Penelope accepts, but not before she finishes her veil.

Cleia sees Penelope unweaving the veil. Cleia tells Antinous about the situation.

Antinous is angry. He tells Penelope to marry him at once!
