

| Idioms                           | Meaning | Translation                                 |
|----------------------------------|---------|---------------------------------------------|
| to be on cloud nine              |         | Быть на седьмом небе от счастья             |
| a drop in the ocean              |         | Капля в море                                |
| out of the blue                  |         | Гром среди ясного неба (как снег на голову) |
| learn by heart                   |         | Учить наизусть                              |
| practice makes perfect           |         | Дело мастера боится                         |
| better late than never           |         | Лучше поздно, чем никогда                   |
| be all ears                      |         | Весь во внимании                            |
| put yourself in somebody's shoes |         | Поставить себя на чье-то место              |
| a treadmill                      |         | День сурка                                  |
| as healthy as a horse            |         | Здоровый, как бык/ конь                     |

something that happened unexpectedly

to memorise

to live the same life every day

to have excellent physical health.

eager and ready to listen

a small portion of something big.

it's better to do something late than not to try it being extremely happy about something that has happened.

imagine that you are in somebody's position to understand his/her to continuously improve by practicing