Yesterday my family and I saw a documentary on TV. We all shared a big bucket of popcorn.

It was about the climate, and how we are affecting it. It starts out with a weatherman predicting a lot of rain and many thunderstorms.

Then a scientist explained how many insects are acting weird. He talked about fireflies, ladybugs and grasshoppers and how the changes in their behavior can affect us. He also said that the changes in our climate can cause earthquakes and tornados.

After the documentary I was very sad, looking at my goldfish and thinking of everything that we are doing to the earth. I decided to talk to my family and see what we can do to help!!
