Bài 15: Đọc đoạn văn và trả lời các câu hỏi dưới đây.

The government published a report yesterday saying that we need to eat more healthlly more fruits and vegetables, less fat and sugar. So that means fewer burgers, chips and fried food as wel as cutting down on sweet things. We went into central London yesterday at lunchtime and ask people what they thought about it. "It's got nothing to do with the government what I eat", says Paul Keel, a building worker, as he eats a beefburger and chips washed down with strawberry milkshake. "I think I have a healthy diet. You see, I don't normally eat a beefburger for lunch. Normally I just have chips. "Any fish?" I like cod. But I've only ever had it once." Tim Kennot, a librarian, welcomes the government advice. But he also has his own rule. "I think", he explains, eating his fried and chips, "it's important to eat a variety of food." We then asked Dorothy Mathew, aged 74. "I don't think it's the government's business to tell us what to eat. "We went into Simpson's Restaurant and asked the manager if people changed what they were eating. "I don't think people believe all these reports anymore. What they say is good for you in June, they say is bad for you in July. People have stopped taking notice. We serve what we've always served. Almost all of it is fattening."
