The Origins of Pizza

Nobody really knows where pizza comes from. In fact, there are a lot of different stories about the origin of pizza, but the most common belief is that it was invented in Italy. Although a food historian located the first use of the word 'pizza' in the Italian town of Gaeta, the people of Naples have always claimed pizza to be their own dish. They say that the first modern pizza was created by a baker in Naples in 1889. The baker used mozzarella cheese, basil and tomatoes, all of which represented the national colours of the Italian flag. The baker made this pizza to honour King Umberto and Queen Margherita who were visiting Naples. The story goes that the Queen enjoyed this special pie a lot, and so the baker named his first pizza Margherita.

Looking at the stories behind the basic ingredients used in modern pizza, we can learn more things about the history of pizza. Flat bread is one of the ingredients. Ancient Greeks baked large, round and flat bread on which they put various items such as olives and spices. The idea of flat bread found its way to Italy. In the early 18th century, plain flat breads, called pizzas in Italy, were sold mostly in the streets. Those pizzas were delicious. However, as they had nothing on top, they were cheap to buy and they soon became a popular dish for the poor.

The second ingredient is cheese, which has been around for thousands of years. Travellers from Asia are believed to have brought the art of cheese making to Europe. In fact, cheese was made in many parts of the Roman Empire. Tomatoes, the third ingredient, came to Europe in the 1500s. In the beginning, the people of Europe thought they were poisonous. It was not until the 17th century that the poor people of Naples added tomatoes to their food and gave the world the first basic tomato sauce.

In the beginning of the 20th century, Italian immigrants brought pizza to America. One of those Italian immigrants opened the first pizzeria in New York, in 1905. _____, pizza has become one of the world's favourite foods. The basic design remains the same, but what goes on the top varies depending on someone's taste.

Plants

Indoor Plants

Everybody knows that interior plants and flowers can make any place look attractive. However, besides the beauty we see in indoor plants, they have a variety of benefits. For one thing, being close to plants makes us feel more comfortable and cheerful whether we are at home or at work. Interior greenery also makes our surroundings more stimulating and exciting. As a result, the more greenery there is in a working environment, the more productive and happier people become. The presence of plants within hospital rooms has a positive influence as well. According to medical research, patients in hospital rooms with plants and flowers have a significantly shorter hospitalisation, need fewer painkillers, experience less stress and feel more optimistic.

In addition, because indoor plants exchange gases and water with their surroundings, they can improve the air quality of a building by lowering the levels of carbon dioxide and airborne dust. Noise reduction is another known benefit of indoor plants. There is usually a lot of noise either from inside a building such as people shouting or from busy roads. The parts of a plant like stems and leaves are particularly effective in decreasing sound and so indoor plants create a welcoming environment to live or work in.

9. According to the 1st paragraph, indoor plants can
 - A. have a positive influence on our mood.
 - B. make people look more attractive.
 - C. help working people avoid doing difficult work.
10. The presence of plants in hospital rooms can
 - A. cause people to feel anxious.
 - B. increase the time patients spend in hospital.
 - C. make patients feel more positive.
11. What is FALSE according to the 2nd paragraph?
 - A. Indoor plants can improve the air in a building.
 - B. Plants add dust to the buildings they are in.
 - C. The parts of a plant can help reduce noise.
12. Which of the following can best replace the word 'welcoming' in the 2nd paragraph?
 - A. tidy
 - B. intense
 - C. friendly

Outdoor Plants

Whether it is large or small, a garden can both make our home beautiful and help the environment as well. Anything we plant in our garden can reduce the amount of carbon dioxide in the air and give off oxygen. If we plant vegetables, we don't have to shop at the supermarket as much and so we can lower our grocery bill. It takes only about a tenth of an acre to produce most of the vegetables we need for a whole year. Even if we don't have any space to create a garden, we can grow some vegetables on our balcony and still be able to enjoy food free from chemicals. Plants, trees and flowers also help remove harmful bacteria from water in the ground and make it cleaner. In addition, plants are an important food source for a lot of animals and insects.

It goes without saying that gardening is one of the most popular hobbies all over the world. Besides being an enjoyable and creative activity, gardening is an effective workout as we can burn about three hundred calories in an hour and build up our muscles, too. It has also been shown that gardening is a great way for someone to deal with problems and stress. It is a rewarding experience for children as well since they learn to appreciate and respect nature.

13. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a benefit of a garden?
 - A. keeping the environment cleaner
 - B. encouraging people to buy fresh vegetables
 - C. spending less money on vegetables
14. What is FALSE according to the 1st paragraph?
 - A. Plants are likely to make the water in the ground cleaner.
 - B. Vegetables grown on a balcony require a lot of chemicals.
 - C. Many kinds of insects and animals depend on plants.
15. According to the 2nd paragraph, we understand that gardening
