

I helped my neighbour

It was Friday afternoon and Jenny had three days left in which to revise for her Maths test. She was studying hard in the kitchen when she heard her dog, Rex, barking in the garden. She went out to find out what the matter was. She smelt the smoke as soon as she got outside. Then she saw that it was coming from the neighbour's kitchen window.

'I must get help,' she thought. She quickly went back into the house and called the emergency services. Then she ran to the neighbour's back door. However, that was locked, so she ran round to the opposite side of the house to the big glass doors that opened onto the terrace from the living room. Luckily, they weren't locked, and Jenny entered the house. It was dark inside, but she remembered that it would be dangerous to put on the light. She started to move towards the kitchen door, but before she got there, she found Mrs Black asleep in an armchair. Gently, she woke her up and helped her out of the house, just as the fire engine arrived.
