

a) Read the text

- What's this, uncle George?
- This is my PC, Johnny.
- Your PC? What's that?
- It's a computer.
- What colour is it? Is it white?
- No, it's light grey, actually.
- And what's that black thing? Is it another computer?
- Yes, but that is a different kind of computer. It's a laptop.
- Isn't the other computer a laptop, then?
- No, the other is a desktop, or a personal computer
- And which computer is better?
- Well, it depends on what it is for. A PC is better to work at home. A laptop is better for working in different places.
- Why is a PC better, then? Isn't it easier to move a laptop?
- Well, yes, a PC is heavier, and more difficult to move, but it's more powerful, too. PCs are also faster and cheaper than notebooks.
- I see. So, a laptop is easier to move because it's lighter, but it's slower, and less powerful, and more expensive, isn't it?
- That's right, Johnny.

b) Answer these questions (write one word in each gap):

1. What colour is the PC? It _____.
2. Which computer is better? _____.
3. What are the advantages of a PC? It _____ more _____, _____ and _____ than a laptop.
4. What's the advantage of a laptop? _____.