Mole festival in Mexico

Last month, my boyfriend and I went to a wonderful festival. It was a mole festival in a small town near Mexico City. What's mole? It's a special sauce made from hot peppers, tortillas and bread, spices, and chocolate! It's delicious and you eat it over chicken or turkey pieces or you can make enchiladas with it.

Enchiladas are tortillas filled with chicken and covered with sauce.

It was a great festival. There were hundreds of small stands, each one with its own particular variety of mole. Some were very spicy, others were sweet. Each one was different. As you passed each stand, people gave you spoons containing a small amount of their interpretation of mole. If you really liked one, you could sit down and eat a delicious plate of mole and chicken or even buy condensed mole to take home. It was unforgettable.

Reading

Read the article about global warming. Are the statements below 'Right' (A) or 'Wrong' (B)?

If there is not enough information to answer 'Right' (A) or 'Wrong' (B), choose 'Doesn't say' (C).

Global warming

Climate change is a phrase we often hear in the news these days, and global warming is a major part of it. Its meaning is simple: the world seems to be getting warmer year after year. For most people living around the world, global warming is an event that might happen at some point in the future. Scientists regularly warn us about the effects of global warming, but many of us are too comfortable in our lives to worry about it. They tell us that we should recycle our trash and have a green lifestyle, but we are often too lazy and make excuses.

However, for some people in the world, global warming is very real. For example, in Australia, there are more and more dangerous fires in forests every summer. Small islands in the Pacific and Indian oceans are worried about rising sea levels. In other countries, storms are getting stronger and it is raining a lot more than usual.

So, it's important to remember that global warming is not something that might happen – it is definitely happening. It may be true that there have been other times of climate change in Earth's history, but we should try to work together to help prevent the effects of global warming around the world.
