

4H: An Article

|                                              |                                                                                                  |            |
|----------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| global v [redacted]                          |                                                                                                  |            |
| threat (n) to N [redacted] de don     | Her parents carried out their threat to take away her mobile phone if her grades didn't improve. | [redacted] |
| be [redacted] threat                         |                                                                                                  |            |
| = be [redacted] risk stroke           | Drunken drivers pose a serious threat to other road users.                                       |            |
| = be [redacted] danger                       | They threatened to quit the job because of low wages.                                            |            |
| threaten (v) + do V                          | They threatened the shopkeeper with a gun.                                                       | [redacted] |
| threatening (adj) plunging            | As the [redacted] clouds approached, the winds suddenly                                          |            |
| threatened (adj) plunging             | blew up into a blinding snowstorm.                                                               |            |
| threaten sb with sth                         | The panda is the best known of our [redacted] species.                                           |            |
| take sth seriously                           | You don't take anything seriously, do you? It's all one big                                      |            |
| >< take sth for granted embroidery no | joke to you.                                                                                     |            |
| embroidery                            | It's easy to take your parents for granted because they are                                      |            |
|                                              | always there for you.                                                                            |            |
| It seems to me that ...                      |                                                                                                  |            |
| What is more, S V                            |                                                                                                  |            |
| = Moreover, S V                              |                                                                                                  |            |
| Nevertheless, S V                            |                                                                                                  |            |
| = However, S V                               |                                                                                                  |            |