Sue is talking to Lily on Skype. Sue can't go out on Saturday because she has to hang out with her little sister, Georgie. Sue says she'll bring up bringing Georgie too. Georgie interrupts, and Sue has to hang up. Georgie's hamster has passed away and she's upset. Sue says she loves her little sister but she wears her out. Meanwhile, Sam is wondering why Sue doesn't want to bring up them. He thinks Sue should go for Georgie to the cinema, but maybe Sue won't bring up the idea. Sue is annoyed because her sister is trying to look like her, but Lily says it's sweet that Georgie looks up to her big sister. Sue disagrees that they are similar; Georgie looks up to her dad, whereas Sue is more like her mum.

When Georgie asks Sue to get her a hamster, Sue gets angry. She tells her sister to bring up. Georgie says their dad will bring up. In frustration, Sue says "I bring up!". Fred and Sam take Georgie to look at some kittens, then they all go to the cinema. Georgie is the only one who isn't scared by the film.
