A final whistle that everyone will have been dying to hear, marking the end(1) the longest game of basketball ever played. "120 hours, 1 minute, 7 seconds."

Having started(2) Monday, the two teams of 12 players(3) Manila in the Philippines have been shooting hoops non-stop(4) five days. "We went through so much, the hardships, the stress, the pain and the emotional strain mixed together, but when we saw the clock reaching 120 hours, the pain vanished. We're so happy." The players had to follow(5) strict instructions, including not being allowed to go(6) the court, only being allowed to rest when they were subbed off. And 120 hours, one minute and seven seconds later, they had easily beaten the previous record of 112 hours and were able to get a well-earned rest.
