VIDEO-G MILLIONAIRES

The first commercial video games appeared in the early 1970s. In the 1980s there were the first reports of video game addiction. Nowadays, teenagers spend hours playing video games. Some of them are also becoming millionaires by making video games, something that only a few years ago just wasn't possible.

We often hear the negative stories of the video gaming phenomenon: it isn't healthy; kids spend too much time in front of a screen; it can have negative effects on their school work and social life; there is too much violence and kids can become aggressive. But there are positive aspects, too.

Alex Balfanz is 18 years old. He is a student at Duke University and he is a normal teenager. He studies hard and plays video games. But he doesn't just play them. Alex makes video games and he is making a lot of money. His adventure game, Jailbreak, was an immediate success. He earned a seven-figure salary and a few weeks ago a kid played the game for the billionth time!

Opportunities like this were just a dream. Was this possible just five or seven years ago? No, it wasn't. But now, thanks to online sales platforms, anyone with a good idea can be successful.

Another way of making money is simply by playing video games. Ten years ago, the professional video game player didn't exist but now it is a sport attracting 600 million viewers. Even the International Olympics Committee is thinking about adding it to their events list. So, perhaps video-gaming does have its positive side too!
