Globalisation

It is no _____ to say that the world we live in has become a global village. Modern methods of _____ have made the world seem much smaller. The problems we face, such as _____ are not restricted to any one country alone. For example, the _____ of the rain forests in Brazil is everybody's problem; _____, which is still a problem in many African countries, is a challenge for Europe, too. The extinction of rare species is a tragedy for the planet, while the _____ of oil supplies will shake the _____ of the world's economy. The _____ of the environment is something that concerns all nations — rich or poor. However, uncontrolled economic _____ between strong and weak nations leads to the _____ of greater inequality between the rich and poor nations of the world. If we are to save the planet, we need to stop competing and start working together. _____ is the key to saving our 'global village'!
