

Reading Part 1

- The same text is used for questions 1-8.
- Read the text and answer the questions.

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

1. Read the text and answer the question:

At the beginning of the story, how does Jasim feel about school?

- A. He really enjoys it.
- B. He feels angry about it.
- C. He doesn't take it seriously

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

2. Read the text and answer the question:

Jasim's teacher wants to ____.

- A. talk about his poor performance at school
- B. tell him what career he should do
- C. say that he should do more homework

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

3. Read the text and answer the question:

***** BONUS ***** Jasim told his teacher that he wants to ____.

- A. be a policeman
- B. fly aeroplanes
- C. go to university

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

4. Read the text and answer the question:

When Jasim changed his behaviour, he saw his friends __ usual.

- A. less than
- B. more than
- C. as much as

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

5. Read the text and answer the question:

After Jasim had been studying for a while, he found it ____.

- A. Tiring
- B. too hard
- C. enjoyable

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

6. Read the text and answer the question:

Jasim was accepted on the training course because his ____.

- A. attitude to his work had improved
- B. teacher had advised him to apply
- C. family had helped him

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

7. Read the text and answer the question:

How did the teacher's opinion of Jasim change during the story?

- A. He thought Jasim was a bad student at the beginning and at the end.
- B. He believed that Jasim didn't care about studying at the start but was hardworking in the end.
- C. He was certain that Jasim would succeed in the beginning but not at the end.

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.

8. Read the text and answer the question:

What is the story about?

- A. training to be a pilot
- B. behaving well at school
- C. how to reach your future goals

Jasim saw his teacher, Mr. Ahmed, waving to him with an angry look on his face. Acting as if he hadn't seen him, Jasim ran to where his friends were playing and joined in the fun. I'd much rather do this than concentrate on my schoolwork! he thought. Later, Mr. Ahmed called Jasim to his office. "Jasim, you've missed another homework task! Your grades are very low. You used to be a good student but now I believe that your bad grades will affect your future plans. What would you like to do after leaving school?" "My father wants me to be a policeman, but I'm more interested in studying to become an airline pilot," Jasim replied. "That will involve a lot of hard work," said Mr. Ahmed. "However, you learn things more easily than most people, so you should be ok. Let me help you to make a plan of what you need to do." After talking to Mr. Ahmed, Jasim didn't spend as much time playing with his friends. He spent more time studying and working on raising his grades. At first, it was difficult and tiring, but he began to like it when his grades improved. Time passed. Jasim's helpful family surrounded him as he opened an important letter. "I've done it!" he cried. "I've been accepted on the pilot training programme. I'm so excited about starting my new job, I've been working towards this moment for years," said Jasim happily. Jasim thought back to the help that Mr. Ahmed had given him. "I'll call him to tell him the news," he said. Mr. Ahmed was just as excited as Jasim. "I was certain you would do it if you studied harder!" he said.