Canada is a North American country consisting of 10 provinces and three territories. It is located in the Northern part of the continent and it is the second largest country by total area. The name Canada comes from the word Kanata and it means village or settlement.

Canada refereed to the part of New France and at the end, it became a possession of the British Empire. Archaeological and genetic studies say that 26500 years ago, Canada was populated by aboriginal peoples. European consolidation started about 1497, and for many years, it was ruled by New France and after by the British Empire. Because Britain still maintained control of Canada, it brought into the World War I. Canada became independent in the 50s (exactly on the 1st of July, day of Canada). Now, it is one of the Commonwealth Nation. Elisabeth the II is the head state and Canada is one of the richest countries and the one which has the highest living standards.
