Listen to the conversation and fill in the blanks

Doctor: Hello, James. I can't say it's good to see you again here. What's wrong now?

Patient: Morning, doctor. Yeah, as I told your assistant, I've been feeling some pain.

Doctor: I see. The last time you came here you had pain on the _____. Is this the same pain now?

Patient: No, it's not. My _____ is better now, I've been having pain on my _____ now. It hurts.

Doctor: All right. Then, let's check your _____. Look straight ahead, please.

Patient: At the beginning, I thought it was a cold because I was coughing a lot, but then... I started feeling some pain on my _____ due to that pain. But then, I thought that it could be... The _____. I probably have some _____ problems or maybe a _____ disease. You will tell me. Can you also check my _____? I feel it hard and I don't like it. Maybe I have a problem there. I have been doing a lot of abs recently, but I don't think that is the problem. It really hurts. So, doctor ... How do you see my _____, my _____, and my _____?

Doctor: Well, I don't see any problem on your _____ or any other part of your _____ Patient: Mmm... Can you also check my _____? I feel my _____ a little red. I don't know. I feel as if I had been punched on the _____ or something. I feel my _____ irritated.

Doctor: Well, I don't see any problem on your _____, I also checked your _____ and _____ and nothing

Patient: Seriously? I feel my _____ dry and my _____ is also irritated. Also my _____. I had an earache some days ago. It really hurt, Oh, my _____, also my _____, please. check it. I think my chin has a strange pimple. Could it be an infection or I don't know

Doctor: Alright. I finished checking all the parts of your _____ you told me and everything's fine.
