The best film I have ever seen is Journey to the Centre of the Earth. It is a science fiction film and that's my favourite type of film. The story takes place first in Iceland then in the centre of the Earth. The heroes are a thirteen-year-old boy called Sean and his uncle Trevor, a volcano scientist. They travel to a strange world in the centre of the Earth with flying fish and dinosaurs. There are excellent actors in the film. The heroine is a beautiful woman called Hannah. She is played by Anita Briem. The volcano scientist, Trevor Anderson, is played by Brendan Fraser. He was in The Mummy as well. The hero, Sean, is played by a fifteen-year-old American called Josh Hutcherson. He has already made thirteen films! He is brilliant! The special effects are incredible. Most of these were created on a computer. I really liked the man-eating plants. These enormous plants are very scary because they don't look dangerous, but they eat animals and people. They're amazing! There are a lot of fantastic moments in the film, but the best scene is when the heroes fall into the centre of the Earth. They are climbing mountains in Iceland and they become trapped in a volcano. They try to escape, but they fall further and further down a deep hole and it is very exciting. I'd love to see the film again. Everybody should go and see it!
