

Exercise 7

Read the information again. Then correct the mistakes in the sentences. Each sentence has one mistake with the verb form. The first question has been done for you.

First conditional

We use the first conditional to talk about things that are likely to happen in the future.

In the if-clause, we don't usually use will. Use the present tense instead:

- If + present simple: If there are some tickets left, I'll buy one.
- If + present continuous: If you're planning to come too, I'll buy you a ticket.
- If + present perfect: If they've already sold all the tickets, we'll have to watch the festival on TV instead.

In the main clause, we usually use a future form or an imperative:

- will: If they cancel the festival, I'll be disappointed.
- going to: If they don't give me my money back, I'm going to complain to the organisers.
- imperative: If you write to them, ask for my money back, too.

1. You're going to feel sick if you'll you eat too much food.
2. What do you do if there aren't any tickets left tomorrow?
3. If you won't want to get cold and wet, take a warm coat to the festival.
4. If there won't be enough people, there won't be much of an atmosphere.
5. I definitely take some photographs if I get close enough to the band at tonight's concert.
6. Will there be enough space for everybody if 100,000 people will turn up?
7. If we get enough sponsorship money at next week's meeting, we're able to organise a great festival.
