

Many people have learning disorders. They suffer in school: other children bully them or make fun of them and call them 'slow'. However, people can get over their learning disorders and have successful careers 5 with the help and support of family, teachers and doctors, as these examples prove.

At school, Michael Phelps could not sit still and found it difficult to concentrate. His teachers said he couldn't focus on anything. But then he found his passion for sport.
0 His mother encouraged him and helped him to develop his swimming ability. His reading improved when he read books about sport. And his Maths improved when the problems reflected his interests, for example, 'How long will it take to swim 500 metres if you swim three metres 5 per second?' Through hard work and never missing a day's practice, Michael became an Olympic champion, winning twenty-eight medals, twenty-three of them gold.

In the world of autism, Dr Temple Grandin is an 20 important voice. Autistic herself, she is an expert on how to teach people with autism, and she has written six books about the 25 condition. She describes herself as a visual thinker and says that her mind is like Google Images. School was difficult for her 30 because she didn't think in the same way as other children. But one summer, she worked on a farm and discovered that she 'understood animals'. At school, 15 her science teacher became her mentor. With his help and support, Grandin became interested in animal science. She later became a professor of animal science at Colorado State University.

Keira Knightley found out 40 she had dyslexia at the age of six and she remembers other children calling her stupid. She believes that her problems with reading and 45 writing made her strong.
Knightley struggled with reading and writing, but she dreamt of being an actress, so she had to read scripts.
50 She had to work harder than other children to improve her literacy, but she finished school with top grades.

Richard Branson is one 55 of the most successful entrepreneurs in the world.
He says that because of his dyslexia, he has learnt to keep things simple, ignore 60 difficulties and focus on what he is good at.
However, he grew up at a time when dyslexia was misunderstood – his 65 teachers made the mistake of thinking that he was lazy or 'not very clever'. His head teacher at secondary school told him: 'I predict 70 that you will either go to prison or become a millionaire.'
He was right.

So don't worry if you are different – you never know where your differences could lead you.
