A presentation about a famous festival

James Oliver, a fifteen-year-old boy, talks about a festival in China

Last month, my family visited China for a festival called the Harbin International Ice and Snow Sculpture Festival. It's an annual winter festival. It began in 1963 and now it's the largest ice and snow festival in the world. There were amazing sculptures of many shapes and sizes. There were ice castles and buildings, as well as snow sculptures of different characters. At night, people decorated the sculptures with colorful LED lights, which made everything even more beautiful. During the festival, you could also watch fireworks. It was fantastic. Our family had the best time ever. We had never seen anything like it before. Next year we're going to another festival in Australia. It's called the Festival of Lights.

Questions:

17. What is James doing in the presentation?

A. Explaining how his family could go to China. B. Telling people about tips to visit the Ice and Snow Festival in China. C. Explaining how ice sculptures are made. D. Telling people about his trip to an international festival.

18. What do you learn about the festival?

A. It's held every year. B. In 1963, it was the biggest ice and snow festival in the world. C. All of sculptures have the same shape and size. D. The sculptures are painted with colors to make them more beautiful.

19. What did he say about the ice sculptures?

A. The ice sculptures are smaller than the snow sculptures. B. People have never seen ice sculptures at the festival after 1963. C. The ice sculptures were decorated with special lights at night. D. People built the ice sculptures in February.

20. What can people see at the festival?

A. Colorful LED lights with many shapes and sizes. B. Beautiful Chinese castles and old buildings. C. Big sculptures made of ice and snow. D. Fireworks at the end of the festival.

21. How do you think James feels about the festival?

A. James thinks the festival is too small. B. James is happy because he went to the festival. C. James thinks the festival wasn't a lot of fun. D. James wants to go again next year.
