Samantha Larson,
an amazing girl

Tom Carter tom_carter@theschooldailynews.com

Incredible. She is young, intelligent, and very beautiful. What a life!

What a story! The Aconcagua peak in South America at 13, Mount Kilimanjaro in Africa and Elbrus in Russia, at 14. Mount Vinson in Antarctica at 15, and the Carstensz Pyramid and the Everest at 18. The seven summits in seven continents! About one or two summits a year.

She excels in everything; in music, dance, school ... She plays the oboe in the school marks at high school and now a brilliant student at Stanford University, in Palo Alto, California.

Samantha trains and climbs with her father, Dr David Larson. They sometimes go to the mountain for three or four days, and train there.

When she is at home, she works out at the gym, and swims practically every day. When she is very tired, she doesn't run. It's not good for her legs. ♦
