Reading Practice

Read the passage “Max and Eddie Watch Clouds” before answering Numbers 1 through 5.

Max and Eddie Watch Clouds

It was a bright, sunny afternoon. Max and Eddie looked at the sky. They sat in their home in the branches. Their tails moved softly in the wind.

“Max,” asked Eddie, “why do clouds not fall from the sky?”

“I do not know, Eddie,” said Max.

“Everything else falls,” said Eddie. “Apples and leaves fall. Even this acorn falls.” Eddie dropped an acorn. “But we have never seen a cloud fall.”

“I have a plan,” said Max. “We will watch the sky tomorrow. Maybe we will see what happens to the clouds.”

The next day, there were lots of white clouds. The squirrels watched them all morning and all afternoon. Then it started to get dark. The clouds moved across the sky. They grew bigger, but they did not fall.

“Rats!” said Eddie. “I wonder if we missed something.” Max and Eddie were very confused.

The next day, the clouds grew bigger. They started to turn gray. “Oh, it looks like it might rain. We should go inside,” said Eddie.

“No,” said Max. “We have to watch the clouds.”

So Max and Eddie waited. It got darker, and soon there was no sunlight in the sky. Big, gray clouds covered everything. Then it started to rain.

The squirrels tried covering themselves with their tails. It was no use. They got wetter and wetter as they watched. Finally, the rain stopped. There were no clouds in the sky.

“Hey, the clouds are gone!” said Max. “Do you think they fell?”

“Max,” said Eddie. “We watched the whole time. We did not see any clouds fall.”

"But after the rain stopped, the clouds were gone," said Max.

"So clouds are made of rain!" cried Eddie.

"Yes! So clouds do fall!" said Eddie.

A rainbow came out, and Max and Eddie smiled.
