THE GREAT DEBATE OVER GM FOODS

One of the hottest topics in Agriculture today is (1)_____ modified (GM) foods. GM foods are foods (2)_____ come from plants that have had their DNA altered using biotechnology. GM foods have been on the market since 1994, when a company called Calgene started selling GM tomatoes. (3)_____, other GM foods including papaya, corn, and plums, to name a few, have been developed.

The main (4)_____ of GM foods is that they can be a more economical solution than non-GM foods. Scientists found a way to modify many plants to make them more resistant to weeds, diseases, and pests. This allows the plants to grow in tougher climates and conditions, which should lead (5)_____ lower food prices and increase the overall food supply.

If you think of the jobs robots could never do, you would probably put doctors and teachers at the top of the list. It's easy to imagine robot cleaners and factory workers, but some jobs need human connection and creativity. But are we underestimating what robots can do? In some cases, they already perform better than doctors at diagnosing illness. Also, some patients might feel more comfortable sharing personal information with a machine than a person. Could there be a place for robots in education after all?

British education expert Anthony Seldon thinks so. And he even has a date for the robot takeover of the classroom: 2027. He predicts robots will do the main job of transferring information and teachers will be like assistants. Intelligent robots will read students' faces, movements and maybe even brain signals. Then they will adapt the information to each student. It's not a popular opinion and it's unlikely robots will ever have empathy and the ability to really connect with humans like another human can.

One thing is certain, though. A robot teacher is better than no teacher at all. In some parts of the world, there aren't enough teachers and 9 – 16 percent of children under the age of 14 don't go to school. That problem could be partly solved by robots because they can teach anywhere and won't get stressed, tired, or move somewhere for an easier, higher-paid job.

20. What is the passage mainly about?

A. What robots can do in many fields
B. Whether robots can work in schools
C. Whether robots can replace doctors
D. The negative aspects of a robot teacher

21. The word "diagnosing" in paragraph 1 mostly means _____.

A. identifying B. prescribing C. producing D. inventing

22. Anthony Seldon thinks teachers in the future will _____.

A. help robots in class B. teach knowledge to students
C. no longer exist D. have no work to do

23. The word "they" in paragraph 2 refers to _____.

A. student's faces B. student's movements
C. brain signals D. intelligent robots

24. According to the passage, all of the following are mentioned as advantages of robot teachers EXCEPT _____.

A. unpressured B. unexhausted
C. higher-paid D. always ready to work in anywhere
