Concept	Definition
Intonation
Appropriacy
Connected Speech
Accuracy
Fluency
Body Language
Interaction
Inference

This is the movement of the level of the voice. E.G.. the tune of a sentence or a group of words

To decide how a speacker feels about something from the way that they speak

Using gestures and expressions to reinforce what we say with words

Using a level of formality when we are speaking or writing which suits the situation and audience.

This is two way to communication using language and body language to keep our listener involved in what we are saying and to check that they undersatn what we mean.

Using the correct form of the language. In the other words, not making any grammatical o phonological mistakes.

Spoken language in which words are joined to form a connected stream of features include: contractions, linkage, vowel, shortening in unstressed words, dropped sounds.

The ability to speak condifently ay a normal speed without overuse of thinking pauses, hesitation devices and false starts

LIVEWORKSHEETS